

iPhone 6 World Weather

I used to watch the Chinese weather forecast everyday when I was little. One really memorable thing was that the hostess would report on the weather forecast of all the major cities in the world, including those I never heard in the news otherwise. I was facinated by those foreign cities and felt a strange connection to them because I knew their weather. This world weather app will randomly select some cities around the world and display them on a grid representing their relative location to each other. The color of each dot maps to the current weather at the location (the warmer the color appears, the warmer the weather is). When user clicks on the dot, it brings up two simple graphs of actual temperature and apparent temperature hour-by-hour for the next seven days for the city.

